REDS STORM KHARKOV; NAZI TOLL GROWING

Waves of Counter-Attacking Germans Swallowed

VEDGES OF TANKS HURLED AT REDS

Chinese, In Far Pacific, Report Japanese Are Checked In Burma

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH.

Associated Press War Editor
The Red army offensive toward and deeply aflank Kharkov was reported today to have swallowed up waves of counter-attacking Germans, boosting Russia's official toll of 12,000 dead and 1,200 prisoners or only the first four days of the one week-old campaign.

In one later, action, the Germans were said to have lost more than 30 dead, hurling flying wedges of tanks and trailer-borne troops against the encroaching Russian army only to be enveloped.

Small detachments of parachutists also were reported dropped in desperate effort to disorganize
the Russian drive but two of the groups were wiped out to a man before they touched earth.

These advances, official and unofficial, from Russia, coupled with a London report that the drive had been expanded to a 100-mile front, widened the Russian theater as the principal point in the global conflict.

In the far Pacific, the Chinese reported they had checked the Japanese invasion from Burma and southwestern Yunnan and Tokyo
said that other Japanese forces were within four miles of the Indian frontier.

That the war was entering a new,
decisive stage was emphasized by official British hints that the opening of a second European front is the planning stage and other advices picturing the strains upon morale and solidarity behind the old facade of Rome and Berlin.

MOSCOW, May 18.—With the Red army closing in steadily upon vital Kharkov, battlefield dispatches reported today that the Germans were hurling flying wedges of tanks and trailer-carried troops into desperate attempt to break up the offensive, now in its seventh day.

Pravda reported that these Nazi counterattacks on wheels and reads,
as well as mass German parachute landings of many as 120 troops at a time, had failed to check the impetus of the Russian thrust.

Already that drive has gained 12
to 37 miles over blood-stained battlegrounds littered with the bodies of 12,000 German dead and the wreckage of war materials hard to re-pile, the Russians announced officially.

British military sources said Marshal Timoshenko's armies were advancing on a 100-mile front extending in an arc from Volchansk, Ukraine, to the Black Sea.

No Shaves Until They Pop Japs

Those luxuriant beards being cultivated by Machinist's Mate Thomas M. Ryan (left) and Radioman Charles J. Leblanc are going to flourish until they launch a torpedo at an enemy ship. The two navy men, members of a mosquito boat crew based in the Panama Canal Zone, began growing the beards when Pearl Harbor was attacked.

Nazi Civilian Morale Slips As Hitler Fails To Make Good

Entry of U. S. In War, Hess Flight, Invasion of Russia,
Poor Food, Living, Bring Letdown

Edwin A. Shanke, who gives this view of inside Germany, is a member of the former Berlin bureau of the Associated Press
who has arrived in Lisbon from internment at Neuheim with United States citizens being exchanged for Axis nationals.)

By EDWIN A. SHANKE.

LISBON, May 18.—German civilian morale is slipping.
But that doesn't mean that Nazi-dom is near internal collapse or that revolution is just around the corner.

Such an estimate of Germany today would be pure wishful thinking. For it must be remembered that the Nazis keep the police-ridden country in hand, with a gestapo agent behind every bush and every neighbor a potential informer.

But it does signify a letdown in the general day-to-day efficiency,
a slackening in the German war effort which in the long run will have a telling effect.

Morale Honeycombed

The sinking spirits at home are being transmitted in turn to the soldier at the front—honeycombing
what until recently had been high morale. Letters from home convey to the soldiers part of the picture.
Home leave, when granted, does the rest.

German morale reached its crest
after the smashing Balkan campaign in 1941. That was natural.
The German army had an unbroken string of victories. The nation appeared united as never before. The mass of the people still hadn't seriously thought of the United States
as a potential enemy.

But then a series of elements entered the picture which began to undermine morale.

These included the flight of Adolf Hitler's confidante, Rudolf Hess, to England; the invasion of Russia;
Nazi party favoritism; persecution of the churches; deterioration of food and general living conditions; false promises of peace; entry of the United States into the war; the dismissal of Field Marshal Walther von Braun; and tension between Heinrich Himmler's SS (elite guard) troops and the army.

In the German mind today, Hess
is a traitor who flew to the enemy to reveal Hitler's general war strategy to the British. The Nazis quickly hushed the Hess incident, but nothing disclosed the panic in high Nazi quarters better than the steps taken to counteract the demoralizing effects of Hess' flight.

Police and plain clothes men were in a general state of alarm. Nazi wardheelers in multi circulated in cafes and bars and other public centers to report anyone discussing the Hess case.

First Big Smashup

The departure of Hess was the first big smashup in the Nazi hierarchy since the blood purge of 1934. No amount of hushing could minimize its repercussions. When officials tried to explain the flight as the act of a "crazy man," the people asked themselves "are we being ruled by crazy men?"

Then came the invasion of Russia.
Germans were not prepared for it mentally. The advisability of tackling such a giant—with Britain unconquered—not only shook the military and political leadership from top to bottom, but for the first

LARGE CROWD HEARS BLIND EVANGELIST

Sunday evening to hear Dr. Frank D. Kallenbach, famed blind evangelist whose nightly meetings will continue all this week, closing Sunday, May 24.

He related the story of his wife's greatness last night when groups were present from other cities in the district, including Pennsylvania.

The attainment of true greatness,
he pointed out, involved salvation,
sacrifice and service.

Tonight Dr. Kallenbach, who was a member of Paul Whiteman's orchestra before an accident caused him to lose his sight, will give a trumpet concert.

"Why Evangelism," a challenge to churches who do not recognize the value of evangelistic programs,
was the subject of the speaker's message Sunday morning at the Baptist church.

Slight Drop In Living Cost Seen Today as Commodities Ceilings Are Set In Stores

No Merchant Can Charge More For Consumer Products,
From Now On, Than the Highest Price He Charged In March

The clock of rising prices was moved back to March today and halted.

From now on, no retail merchant may charge more for consumer products than the highest price he charged in March. While the price control order was not expected to result in any startling reductions, economists figured that the average drop in the cost of living would be about 1½ per cent.

When stores open for business today, price lists showing legal top prices and asked prices, which may be lower than the legal top but not higher, must be posted.

Trying to get price lists ready and the merchandise
"retagged" in time, hundreds of workers in the stores, clerks,
stockroom employees, typists, stenographers and others,
have been working at top speed for the last week or more.

Stores Take Inventory

"Getting ready" has meant virtually taking a complete inventory, except for counting the number of items. Copies of price lists must be submitted to the War Price &
Rationing Board for study.

Under Price Administrator Leon Henderson's order, all wholesalers and retailers are licensed. Repeated violations of the price ceilings may mean suspension of licenses.

Prices on thousands of items of all sorts are automatically controlled by the regulation, and comparatively few are exempt. Most of the items covered are known as "cost of living" commodities, those which control most of the nation's price structure.

Items Listed

Among items controlled by price ceilings are those of almost every processed food commodity, such as bread, cake and bakery products, beef, pork, sugar, fluid milk and cream ice cream, canned goods,
cereals, lard and shortening, coffee,
tea, cocoa, salt and spices, but fresh fish and seafoods, vegetables and fresh fruits, mutton and dairy products are not controlled.

Among the other items covered are clothing, shoes, dry goods and yard goods, soap, common fuel, tobacco, drugs, toiletries, furniture, hardware, agricultural supplies, and various appliances.

Not covered are used automobiles,
insurance premiums, professional services and other items.

As a guide to the nearly 2,000,000 American retailers affected the office of Price Administration has begun distributing a "shopkeeper's bible," entitled "what every retailer should know about the general
maximum price regulation."

How To Determine Price

Five tests are prescribed by OPA
by which the retailer may determine his maximum selling price under the universal ceiling.

The first basic rule requires the retailer to take as his ceiling the highest price at which he delivered a specified article in March. The key factor is the actual delivery during March, rather than the making of a sale in that month.
Delivery took place when the customer received the article or when it left the store on its way to the customer.

The second rule covers a retailer who offered an article for sale in March but made no deliveries. His ceiling will be the highest offering price—the price marked on the article itself or on the shelves or racks
where it was displayed for sale.

Third, for an article neither delivered nor offered for sale in March, the ceiling is the highest price of the "similar" article most nearly like it delivered or offered for delivery during March.

Fourth, if none of the first three rules apply, the retailer must fix
the price of his article "not higher than the highest March price of the most closely competitive retailer of the same class for the same article,"
or the article most nearly like it.

Fifth, if none of the four previous rules apply, the retailer must put his problems up to an OPA regional office after arriving at a possible price through use of a complicated OPA formula—which is carefully explained in the "bible."

OHIO VOTE BRINGS NATIONAL ISSUES

Will Be Presented by Two Clevelanders, Bender
and Young

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Ohio
will have a statewide vote involving national issues this year despite the lack of a senatorial election.

With the term of Sen. Robert A.
Taft running until 1945 and that of Sen. Harold H. Burton until 1947, the issues will be presented by Representatives-at-Large George H. Bender and Stephen M. Young,
both of Cleveland.

The first test will come in the August primaries when Young and Bender will seek the nomination of their respective parties for the one Ohio at-large house seat to be available in the 78th congress convening in 1943. A second at-large seat was eliminated by population changes as shown by the 1940
census.

Not In Opposition

Bender, vehement Republican, and Young, lifelong Democrat, will not be opposing each other directly in the primaries but they are expected in that campaign to ask renomination on the basis of their records
in congress.

If they win over primary opponents, the two men will give the voters a straight-out choice between candidates who seldom agree on domestic issues, although both have backed the war effort wholeheartedly, particularly since Pearl Harbor.

Ohioans with an eye to political trends say that primary victories
by Young and Bender would assure a lively election campaign that certainly would attract national attention in November.

Both of the Clevelanders, well-known throughout the state, are registering confidence of an easy victory in the election. Bender, chairman of the Republican organization in the populous Cuyahoga county, will stand on his opposition to New Deal policies before the war. Young is ready to go before the voters as a strong supporter of the Roosevelt administration.

Adjournment of Politics

Bender was critical of some administration foreign policies a year ago, but he called for adjournment
of politics in the interest of unity
for defense even before the outbreak of war. He reserved the right to criticize without hampering the war effort.

MOVIES OF LONDON "BLITZ" SCHEDULED

Motion pictures of the London
blitzkrieg when German bombs devastated great sections of the city, will be shown here Thursday night, May 28, before the general public.

The authentic pictures will be shown by Matvyn Wright, 31, who was chief of the auxiliary fire ser-

British metropolis was bombed in September, 1940.

Wright, who will tell of the im-

interests of civilian defense.

The program here is sponsored by the Civilian Defense council. Ef-

WHAT IS MILITARY SERVICE WORTH?

Members of the congressional conference committee drafting the final form of legislation to raise the pay of Americans in the armed forces have appealed to the budget bureau for an opinion on the $42 level approved by the senate and the $50 level approved by the house. They would like to pass the buck on this ticklish question.

Their desire to take themselves off the spot is understandable. It is impossible to say what military service is worth, because it cannot be measured in money. Few legislators would be willing to do anything in a showdown except raise military wages, for political reasons. But at the same time they must recognize the impossibility of matching civilian wages.

For example, a merchant sailor on ships in danger zones may make as much as $400 a month, whereas the sailor on the warship protecting the convoy may get less than $50 a month even under the increased rates favored by congress. But the government cannot pay its fighting men $400 a month. From a cold financial viewpoint its ability to support a base rate of as little as $50 with millions of men in service is questionable. The budget bureau might argue with some justice that if it had been consulted for an opinion before, instead of after, the legislation for a pay increase was sent to conference committee a lot of headaches could have been averted.

MR. BROWDER'S PASSPORT

Commutation of Earl Browder's sentence by the White House won't settle any doubts about the thing the prisoner represents in the United States. In pursuance of his work, Mr. Browder fraudulently obtained a passport, for which he was sent to the penitentiary. He was not punished for his work, though it is obvious that what he was doing—and no doubt will continue to do—marked him in the sight of many of his countrymen as a man who hardly can expect to be feted by his countrymen.

Eventually, there must be a showdown on policy covering agents of foreign political organizations who try to develop followings in the United States. What to do has been a Chinese puzzle for local, state and federal officials for many years; Mr. Browder's experiences with the law have been typical. But under current circumstances, there is an easy solution.

The United States could offer to be as lenient to Communists, Fascists and Nazis as those minorities offered to be to the agents of democracy. Hereafter, instead of turning the other cheek, it might simply try rubbing the cheek already struck—reflectively. When the isms are willing to receive the salesmen for American democracy, American democracy will quit worrying about passport frauds and various technicalities for handling their salesmen.

The theory that the most equitable way to administer the selective service law would be by local boards has been working reasonably well in practice. It would work a lot better if certain chronic sources of misinformation could be dried up.

Local administration left the draft open to a vast deal of misunderstanding. Interpretations varied as between boards. But the serious source of confusion is not what the boards do. It is what various persons say the boards are going to do.

Guesses occasionally are made by irresponsible persons. Snap answers are given to questions that deserve deliberation. Rumor mongers, for no better reason than to hear themselves talk, pass along stories with no basis in fact. There even are jokesters who think it is funny to upset the lives of prospective draftees with fake notices.

One practical way to short-cut a lot of this sort of thing would be for men expecting to be called for army service to accept nothing as being worthy of their consideration unless it is in writing. Automatically, 999 of the 1,000 inaccurate and misleading statements that are complicating selective service administration would be eliminated as further sources of misunderstanding.

DAYS OF GRACE

What appears to be an equitable solution of one of the meanest problems that has plagued selective service officials has been developed. Beginning June 15, selectees inducted into military service will be entitled on demand to 14 days additional time before going into active service. Their expenses home will be paid by the government.

Principal beneficiaries of the plan will be the borderline cases in which it has been difficult to determine in advance fitness for service. Another group that will profit from the plan is composed of selectees who, prepared to enter military service because of apparent physical soundness, were rejected in the final examination and had to return home.

Selective service wisely advises that hereafter leave-takings for men going to induction centers should be omitted. Formal farewells should wait for the later departure for active service. Men who prefer to short-cut the farewells, moreover, can dispense with the trip home if they choose and write their goodbyes on post cards when they reach camp. Experience is a good teacher; it apparently has taught the selective service system how to make the break between civilian and military life as painless as possible.

Another thing that many can discover is that the greatest pleasure of doing as we please comes from the thought of having pleased others.

It would be splendid if Hitler's all-out campaign developed into a blow-out—and the present indications are that it will.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, May 19

A STRENUOUS day with much opposition, conflict and probably belligerent conditions may arise to challenge the emotional balance as well as the ability to rationalize and not "fly off the handle" at little or no provocation. The incitements to rash, angry, impetuous and quarrelsome behavior may not be considered of minor importance, since the ways seems beset with difficulties and dangers.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of successive difficulties and dangers, especially if tempestuous, violent, reckless and inconsiderate conduct be allowed to run riot in both the private and business associations. Perhaps the latter is most acutely menaced, being subject to treachery, subterfuge, imposition, loss of affections or other estrangements.

A child born on this day may be aggressive and wayward, impetuous and emotionally unstable and indulgent, thereby inviting misery and unhappiness, unless early directed and disciplined.

TREATY WITH PANAMA

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The United States and the Republic of Panama signed a treaty at Panama today covering the use of defense areas in the republic by armed forces of the United States, which already have occupied them.

The state department said the American troops occupied the areas by permission of the Panamanian government. They will develop them as gun emplacements, airplane detector stations, bombings ranges, and auxiliary air fields—the largest of which is the Rio Hato air base some 80 miles southwest of the Panama canal.

The signing of the treaty came as American negotiators at Martinique were continuing their discussion with French authorities on measures to safeguard French Caribbean possessions against possible Axis moves.

In its announcement, the state department asserted the pact was "another significant landmark in the history of relations between the United States and Panama and constitutes an important contribution to the security of the canal and the defense of the hemisphere."

There is talk of Mrs. Roosevelt, the gracious First Lady, taking a vacation. Probably going home.

THE UNRELUCTANT DRAGON

DIABETES FALLS INTO VARIOUS CLASSES

Question of Heredity Is Highly Debatable

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I AM IN receipt of a letter from a lady who asks the following questions: "Is diabetes entirely hereditary or is it brought on by other causes? How can it be guarded against—through diet or medicine or exercise?"

The question of whether diabetes is hereditary or not is highly debatable, but what this letter writer does not recognize is that there are two distinct classes of diabetes.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The cause of diabetes is inability to burn starches and sugars in the body, and the reason for this inability is entirely in the lack of the formation of a substance that is naturally formed in the body called insulin. Insulin is formed from certain cells in the pancreas, and when these degenerate for any reason, diabetes results.

One class of cases in which these cells degenerate occurs in children and young adults. The cause of this degeneration is not known. It may be infectious disease or some poison which enters the body and has a selective affinity for these cells, and completely destroys them. That, at least, is the only explanation we have now and, obviously this kind of diabetes is not hereditary at all.

Severe When In Children
This form of diabetes occurs in children where no other members of the family have diabetes and none of them develop it later. It is, incidentally, a very severe form of diabetes which is more severe than that which occurs in middle aged people.

The other kind of diabetes is far more frequent. It tends to affect people in middle age or in early senility, and is so frequently accompanied by changes in the small arteries of the body that we rather assume the condition is due to a stranguation of the cells of the pancreas which produce insulin—stranguation by closure of the small arteries which supply them.

The change may or may not be accompanied by high blood pressure. It is about fifty-fifty. Half the cases have high blood pressure and half have normal or low blood pressure. But the changes in the arteries are probably there just the same because we find in these cases changes in the arteries of the eye and of the toes and extremities.

Heredity Questionable

Now if we are right in assuming that hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure are hereditary, this group of cases is hereditary, but since the first proposition is debatable, the second proposition is also debatable. There is no use worrying about whether diabetes is hereditary or not, because nothing can be done about it anyway.

I can answer the last question in the letter by saying that there is no way that I know of to prevent diabetes with either diet, exercise or other attentions to personal hygiene. It is true that a majority of the cases occur in those who have previously been overweight (I mean in the second group) and while I cannot personally see any relationship between the overweight and the diabetes, if anybody wants to take advantage of this knowledge, he should keep his weight within normal limits. There doesn't seem to be any connection between the eating of a high sugar and starch diet and the onset of diabetes. While it is true it is a condition in which the physiology of the starches and sugars are changed, any person can take care of an almost unlimited amount of starch until diabetes itself sets in.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. H.: Will you please explain to me what acute glaucoma eye disease is caused from and how to treat it?

Answer: Acute glaucoma is due to an increase in the tension of the fluid inside the eye ball which occurs usually in people around 40 or 50 years of age. Acute glaucoma comes on suddenly with very severe headache, dizziness and vomiting. The pain is referred to the head more than to the eye. Any such episode coming out of a clear sky without previous attacks in a person this age requires the immediate attention of the best oculist available as the condition is very serious.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. MATA HARI'S Daughter

By MAURICE DEKOBRA and LEYLA GEORGIE

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO
 Dick broke in: "Yes, there is something you spoke of having plans for my Z-Ray. Do you mean?"
 "I not only have them, but I put them in execution. Do not realize yet that this Chesson ballet was being transmitted Berlin tonight, by long-distance vision based on your plans?"
 "So that was it!" breathed Sanderson.
 "Of course," replied Vaslav. "A brilliant idea, too, if Brinda had been a little less intelligent the way I notice you have put the man operating the spot-light through which the ballet of us was being transmitted. I did shoot him, if I were you, I am one of Moseley's crowd—a delete traitor."
 "Thanks, I will," promised Sir John. One other question: I think you go the gist of the message you going to transmit, but I should to have it from you complete."
 "Certainly," said Vaslav. "If you remember these handcliffs. After I'm not likely to try to escape. When the request had been made, he took a folded paper in his pocket and read:
 BRITISH GRAND FLEET WILL SAIL FOUR A. M. FRIDAY CONVOYING EXPEDITIONARY FORCE OF ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND OF ETSAMO. ADVISE INVASION ENGLAND WITHIN FORTY EIGHT HOURS. SUCCEED ASSURED."
 "YENVAS."

any future life she may enjoy." Dick's face was a picture of bewilderment.
 "You mean Gladys knew all about you—that she actually gave you my Z-Ray plans? That she is a traitor?"
 "Not a traitor, my poor simple Lieutenant." Vaslav shot a look of undying hatred at Dick. "Only a woman in love—passionately and completely in love, if you please, Maiden—with me. And now—he addressed himself to Sir John—"I am a little tired of this public confession. If you will kindly escort me to a good hotel—I prefer the Savoy—we shall have a bottle of champagne, and I shall tell you all the plans of my recent house-painting Principal to convert your lovely country into a German province. I may even be able to save you from the fate that otherwise assuredly awaits you."
 "Very good," said Sanderson. "Let us go." He stepped aside, and beckoned to the constable. But... a burly figure suddenly appeared from behind the concealing corner of a bit of scenery. The man Brinda knew as Vaslav's chauffeur.
 He lifted a long-barreled pistol, aimed it.
 "Meuller!" cried Vaslav. "Help!" They were his last words.
 A flash of flame stabbed out. The theatre echoed to the roar of the weapon. Vaslav pitched forward and lay still, an outstretched hand almost at Brinda's foot.
 "Do not raise your weapons, Englishmen!" ordered the slayer. "I have heard everything. This man is a traitor. He dies like one. Long live Germany!" He raised the pistol to his own temple. "Hell Hitler!" He pulled the trigger.
 Sir John and Dr. MacDonald sat in the Intelligence Chief's study, a bottle of Scotch between them. Dr. MacDonald helped himself to a liberal portion.
 "Ah, Jock," he rumbled. "You were near making a grievous mistake there, when you thought Brinda was one of that spy ring. But it's as I told you—her-r-edity is what tells the story. What matter if her mother was Mata Hari, or the Queen of Egypt? Her father was a Duncan, and a good Scotsman! And that's her-r-edity enough for any lass!" He rose, lifted his glass high.
 "Here's to Brinda Duncan, old friend...as fine a lassie as ever drew breath. And to the lucky man she's going to marry!"
 Sir John rose, too.
 "I drink," he said, "to all that—and more. To Brinda—who has done more to save England than twenty regiments!"
 They drained their glasses.
 Sir John took a small bundle of papers from a drawer in his desk and tossed it into the blazing fire. "There goes all that was left of Mata Hari in my files."
 The door opened a little, Brinda peered in, saw the two men together, then closed the door and ran down the hall. Dick was waiting for her below.
 "I have the license," he said... "Do you think Sir John will object if we make it next Monday? I may be called to the Fleet any time."
 "I'm sure Sir John won't mind."

And, what's more important, I won't either." Indifferent to possible observers, Dick folded her in his arms, kissed her. He kissed her again.
 "There's only one thing, darling," he said, looking into her eyes. "There's to be no more springs." "O dear, no!" Brinda gave a little shiver. "It's too dangerous—too terrifying!"
 They walked along the street a little way, mutually content, deeply harmonious. Then: "Dick!" exclaimed Brinda suddenly. "Did you see that man who just passed us? The one with a violin case under his arm?"
 "Why, yes," said Dick. "I did. Do you know him, darling?"
 "No," said Brinda. "But I'm sure he's not a violinist. Because I particularly noticed he was carrying the case upside-down...with the little end to the front. There was something else about him, too: the way he walked—the way he looked at us. Dick, I don't believe he has a violin in that case! I shouldn't be surprised if it were a machine gun! Let's follow him. He may be a spy."
 Dick made a sound like a groan. "I haven't a doubt of it, darling!" he wheeled, shook his head resignedly. "Jove, what a woman! I'll swear—you might be the daughter of Mata Hari!"
 "Would you still love me if I were?"
 "I'd love you," said Dick, "if you were Mata Hari's grandmother!"
 Together, with quickening steps, they hastened in pursuit of the man with the violin-case.

Sulfa Drugs Guard Lives of Soldiers

CLEVELAND, May 18.—Today's news of soldiers has a scientific sentinel—the sulfa drugs—guarding against epidemics like those that swept through training camps of the last war.
 "Amazing cures effected in cases of spinal meningitis—which killed hundreds in world war army camps—were described at the third region meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics."
 Since sulfanilamide first was prominently used five years ago, it and other sulfa derivatives have brought about recoveries in 90 per cent of certain types of meningitis cases, Dr. Benjamin W. Carey of Pearl River, N. Y., declared.
 Before these drugs were used, there was a mortality rate of nearly 50 per cent in such cases.
 Dr. John A. Toomey of Western Reserve university's medical school reported no deaths and no complications among 71 consecutive meningitis patients given sulfanilamide and anti-toxin at Cleveland's City hospital. Patients' ages ranged from two weeks to 82 years.
 "Under present circumstances, we may have to deal with epidemics and the sulpha drugs will be exceedingly helpful, especially in training camps," observed Dr. Curtis F. Garvin, associate professor of medicine at Western Reserve university.

OHIO VOTE BRINGS NATIONAL ISSUES

Will Be Presented by Two Clevelanders, Bender and Young

Save for coinciding opinion that the nation must remain united for victory and spend whatever is required to achieve that goal, Bender and Young are as far apart perhaps as any two members of opposite political parties on purely domestic issues.

This is reflected in their periodic speeches in and out of congress. These political foes got their legislative starts in the state legislature. Bender was a state senator from 1920 to 1930. Young served two terms in the assembly from 1913 to 1917. He is a lawyer, Bender an editor and insurance company president.

Young's congressional experience started when he was elected to the 73rd, 74th and the current 77th congress. Bender was elected to the 76th congress in 1938 and was re-elected in 1940.

Bender obviously is influential in his party. He publishes the Ohio Republican and National Republican, and was a delegate to the last party convention. Young, outspoken critic of Republicanism, is a son of the late Judge Stephen M. Young. He had been considered a prospective candidate for governor but announced he preferred to remain in congress.

Lake Placentia Looms As Popular Near-At-Home Vacation Spot This Summer

IDEAL PLACE FOR SUMMER OUTINGS

Swimming, Boating, Fishing — All Pastimes are Provided

Less than 10 miles from Salem is one of the most beautiful lakes in Ohio. Its shores are wooded, its water is clear and its banks are fringed with many varieties of fish. For 30 cottages have been built in the past few years, nearly all of them being year-around homes. Boating, swimming and fishing attract many to this beautiful spot.

In many places could a more beautiful location be found for a summer home, or an all-the-year home, than that of the shores of Lake Placentia, near North Georgetown, a lake whose water is clean and fresh the year around, offering with desirable fish, a lake that is safe for bathing and beautiful to behold.

Many Buy Lots

Many buy lots and build here because of the fishing. Only lot owners and their families have the right to fish in the lake and they are the only ones who make the rules for the lake. The fishing is so good that it is a fisherman's paradise that will remain so for many years to come, simply because it is a natural lake where fish increase and fishermen are so limited in numbers it is never over-fished.

The Lake Placentia Park company is anticipating an exceptionally active season. Motorists are attracted to the hunting spots for their weekend vacations that are close to home and nowhere could they find more pleasure and cleaner spots than provided by the park management.

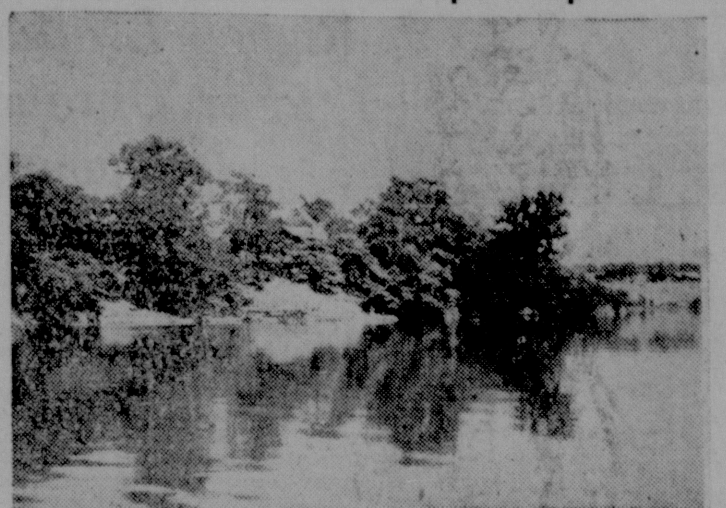

Under Supervision

Boating and bathing are under strict and safe supervision as far as the park's public section is concerned, which accounts for the many picnics held there each year. Shelter houses, picnic tables and all modern facilities are available for groups of most any number.

The general public enjoys watching the Lake Placentia baseball team each year. They play the games in the home grounds and are always at their home grounds Sunday afternoons, winning their share and more of the games.

Dancing evenings attracts many and other clean sports are to be found in every corner of the public park section. Truly, Lake Placentia is a playground for young or old and yet economical enough that any family can well afford its many advantages any weekend.

Placentia Will Be Popular Spot

PROBLEMS OF DRY CLEANER ARE MANY

Synthetic Materials Spell End For All But Modern Cleaner

Considering the vast number of garments dry cleaned each year, it's a wonder more complaints are not registered, for the dry cleaners' problems are many.

The "old fashioned" dry cleaner is out of business or is bound to be soon. When the textile industry began manufacturing synthetic materials they sounded the death knell of the "gasoline" cleaners.

Dry cleaning today is an art. Your cleaner must keep constantly informed, not only of the effect his cleaning solvents may have on your dress, your rayon scarf, your acetate house coat and many others. He must also know something about foods and cosmetics, what they are made of, how to remove their stains—and a host of other things.

Did you know, for example, that tannic acid (present in tea, coffee, onions, liquor, tobacco and many soft drinks) causes a stain that may be invisible until heat is applied? That's why cleaning agencies who have their cleaning done outside have their troubles, for when they press the garment the spot (stain) shows up for the first time—too late to do anything about it without sending it to the spotting department.

To avoid shrinkage, buy pre-shrunk garments—make sure it is pre-shrunk by having the merchant guarantee it to you.

Think twice before you blame your dry cleaner for damaging or staining your clothes. Many acids harmless to your skin are powerful enough to discolor or weaken the delicate fibers of your clothing.

Good dry cleaning is the result of expert knowledge plus the modern equipment necessary, skilled workmanship and the desire to use all these things to the fullest extent. But with all these no dry cleaner can accomplish the impossible.

The Paris Cleaners, on the Benton rd., do have the equipment, everything modern known to the trade; they are members of the best dry cleaners' associations; they are certified cleaners; their plant has been approved by every state agency interested; their employees are trained to do some particular part of the work perfectly, and their policy is to continue to add equipment as it is developed by the trade and to keep informed in every way regarding new fabrics and the proper methods to do the best possible work.

Tires On New Autos Should Last 4 Years

Persons eligible to purchase a new automobile under the liberalized car rationing program are assured by the management of the Althouse Motor Co., local Dodge dealer that with proper care, the tires provided as standard equipment on a new car should last four to five years, or from 40,000 to 50,000 miles.

"In the past, many people had the impression that a new set of tires was good for only about 18,000 to 25,000 miles," said Althouse. "But under today's wartime driving conditions when people are driving more carefully than ever before, a new set of quality tires should last more than twice as long."

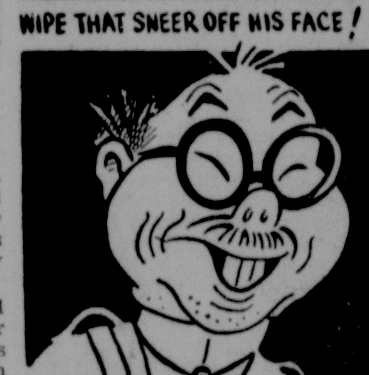

To get top mileage and maximum life from a new set of tires, they must be given the best of care. The specified amount of air pressure in each tire should be maintained at all times. Driving speeds should be kept under 40 miles per hour. Tires should be rotated and inspected regularly. "Jack rabbit" starts and sudden stops should be avoided. Wheel alignment and balance should be checked and corrected frequently. Brakes and steering mechanism should be kept in adjustment. Curves should be taken slowly.

"Motorists who observe the above precautions will find that new tires should give safe, satisfactory service for more than from four to five years, and in some cases even longer."

Akron East Thinclads Win Second Consecutive N.E.O. Meet

AKRON NORTH TEAM SECOND; NEW MARK SET IN BROADJUMP

Hornutovsky of Struthers, Captures Shot Put, Discus Events

Akron East's Orientals copped four places and tied for another as they took their second straight N. E. O. annual track meet at Reilly stadium Saturday with 43 1/2 points. In second place were the Akron North Vikings, runnersup in the annual Night Relays meet recently, with a 36-point total.

Other teams scored as follows: Canton McKinley, 23 1/2; East Palestine, 16; Boardman, 17 1/2; Barberton, 14 1/2; Ravenna, 14; Struthers, 12; Louisville, 10; Akron Buchtel, 7 1/2; Salem, 5; Youngstown Rayen, 4 1/2; East Liverpool, 4; Warren, 4; Cuyahoga Falls, 4; Canton Lehigh, 3; and Akron South, 3. Three teams, Wellsville, Akron Garfield and Alliance, failed to break into the scoring.

A heavy track, the result of a driving Friday rain, prevented the finalists from cracking any track records, but Bob Barnett of Barberton smashed a 10-year-old broad jump mark as he leaped 22 feet 3/4 inch into space to surpass a 21 feet 9 1/4 effort of Bill Pauline of Salem in 1932. Barnett is given a good chance to finish high in the state meet to be held in Columbus next Friday and Saturday.

Takes Two Firsts

Francis Hornutovsky of Struthers copped individual scoring honors as he captured first places in both the discus and the shot put. His 12-point total edged an 11-point spree by Barnett, who took the broad jump and gained a deadlock for the top spot in the high jump.

East Palestine High's Columbiana county championship squad succeeded in qualifying three boys in the state classic. Burris Hunston came through with a tie for first in the 440-yard dash after being "boxed" throughout the first half of the race while Stan Kell and Ken Landsberger survived the 220 and 880 tests, respectively. Failure of Al Schaeffer, East Liverpool's ace hurdler, to make an appearance at the meet cost Joe Morbilo's Pottery-City outfit a few points and a chance to send a contestant to Columbus for the first time in years.

Salem High's Quakers tallied a total of five points, garnered on Bob Scullion's fourth place in the shot put, Bob Ruffing's fourth place in the discus, and a fifth place in the mile relay event. Ruffing heaved the platter 129 feet for his best throw of the year in finishing fourth in the discus, while a spectacular 440-yard dash by Frank "Jock" Hagan, anchor man of the mile relay team, enabled the locals to place in that event.

The Quakers wind up the current campaign tomorrow with a dual meet against the Alliance Aviators at Reilly stadium. The meet will begin at 4 p. m.

BOOK STORE BREAKS EVEN WITH ORPHANS

The Salem Book Store and the Orphans split a twin bill at Reilly field yesterday. The Tigers copping the first by a 10-3 count and the Orphans scoring a 10-7 win in the nightcap. The opener was featured by the one hit hurling job turned in by "Mutt" Schaeffer. Valente got the only safe hit off the Book Store ace. The winners, on the other hand, murdered the pitching of Ray McGaffick for 12 hits to win handily.

In the nightcap, the orphans got ten runs on four hits to take the verdict, 10-4, in a wild game. Paul Horning and "Mutt" Schaeffer gave up only four safe blows but walked so many men that they were in constant trouble. Bob "Doggie" Scullion got three of the four hits allowed by the Book Store hurler to pace the hitters. Bob Wagner McGaffick to lead the losers. McGaffick two safeties off the hurling of fave up six hits in a fine job of hurling.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, May 18.—Here's the last word on that Angott-Stolz scrap in the garden Friday, as delivered by Tony Galento: "That Angott is a worse fighter than I was."

Today's Guest Star
Dennis Brown, Mount Clemens, (Mich.) Monitor-Leader: "A hot rivalry is developing between Chicago and Philadelphia... Chicago has never had twin-billing in the league at the season's end, and though both Cubs and Sox are trying like mad this year, they are getting a tough battle from the Main Line city, striving for its seventh double-feature in the cellar."

Monday Matinee
Some guys get all the breaks—Howie Odell is just taking over the coaching job at poor old Yale when word comes that Bernie Bierman, Jr., about the best prep back in Minnesota last fall, and Emery Larson, Jr., a crack fullback at Lawrenceville, will be in the next freshman class... Ab Jenkins, Salt Lake City's racing mayor, wants to make a run (not political) on the Bonneville salt flats for charity. He says don't worry about the rubber because those small tires on his racing car wouldn't make a handful of rubber bands if reconverted... In cast you're wondering what those Dodgers are doing to the National league, nine of the last ten pitchers to start against them have been belted out.

Father's Day
When Bobby Bragan of the Phils was receiving congratulations on becoming a daddy the other day, various teammates mentioned that they, too, expected to be handing out the cigars soon... After hearing eight of the boys announce future blessed events, Manager Hans Lobert snorted: "I thought the Stork Club was a night spot in New York, but here I find out it's a ball club and I'm managing it!"

Blue Sox Defeated At Carrollton, 9-5

Failing to back up their pitcher with a tight defensive, for the third consecutive week, the Salem Blue Sox were defeated by the Carrollton Merchants, 9-5, Sunday at Carrollton. The Carrollton team jumped into the lead in the first after retiring the Sox without a score when they bunched hits for two runs. They added another in the second and when the Salemites got two in the third came back with three to tie the decision.

Hemming started for Carrollton on the slab but made a hasty exit in the face of a Blue Sox uprising in the third. Hemming came in to put out the fire and stifle the Blue Sox batsmen throughout the remainder of the game. Hemming struck out eight men as did "Toots" Hrvatin who opened on the hill for the locals.

Al Catlos and Julius "Juke" Kovach paced the Blue Sox attack, the former pounding out four hits in five trips to the plate latter singling twice in three trips. W. Leathy smashed out three hits in four times up to lead the winners.

Next week's opponent and the place and the time will be announced later in the week.

PLACENTIA SPLURGE TOPS CANTON, 16-6

Coming from behind in the fourth inning to take the lead, and icing the ball game with a seven-run splurge in the sixth, the Lake Placencia nine won its second game of the season yesterday, defeating the Canton Crystal Parks at the Placencia field, 16-6. Ted Schwartzhoff figured in both the Lakers' rallies as his big bat pounded out four hits in five appearances at the plate.

The visitors opened the scoring in the top half of the first frame when Kola smashed a homer high and wide over the left field fence with the sacks crammed. Placencia came back with five in their half of the inning when Tich walked. Ted Schwartzhoff, Stratton, J. Schwartzhoff and "Bus" Simpson all doubled and Dawson singled. A round-tripper by Arunski in the third and one by Karly in the fourth gave the Canton team a 6-5 edge, but E. Hrovatic smashed one for the home team with Brandfield aboard to sew up the game.

The Lakers added seven in the sixth and two more in the seventh to sew up their second verdict in as many battles. Earl Brandfield, ex-Alliance High star, gave up eight hits in seven innings, whiffed two and passed three. Arunski, the Canton team's starter, was hampered for 15 hits and 14 runs during his six-inning stay on the mound. He struck out six and walked two.

Next Sunday the Lake Placencia nine will meet Cuyahoga Falls Moose.

ROBERTS' WINS TWO FROM EAST ENDERS

The Robert's Men's Shop softballers won a doubleheader yesterday at Reilly field, taking the East End Eagles in the first game, 13-2, and following that win up with a 12-5 conquest. Wayne Hahn turned in a five-hit game in winning the opener as Anderson led the West Siders' attack with two hits in two times up. Kleinaman and Workman each gathered two hits in the Eagles' assault.

Hill took the mound for the second game for the Robert's team and had trouble in setting the Eagles down with five scattered base hits. Once again, Anderson led the winners' attack while Krauss starred for the losers with two safeties in four appearances at the home dish.

Rigney Leaves Baseball For 'Duration', To Enlist In Navy; Chisox Win Two

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

Johnny Rigney, ace of the Chicago White Sox mound staff, will do his future pitching for Uncle Sam, but before he decided to don the navy blue he had to win one for the boss.

The boss is Mrs. Johnny Rigney the former Dorothy Comiskey, treasurer of the White Sox. And Johnny's present to her in his last major league appearance for the duration of the war was a three-hit pitching job against the Washington Senators in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader.

After winning the first game, 7-1 behind the six-hit pitching of Ted Lyons, the White Sox rallied to overcome a three-run

CHICAGO GRAIN
Renewed selling today lowered wheat prices as much as a cent in the first few minutes of trading. Other grains weakened in sympathy.

Traders blamed the liquidation, similar to that which occurred Sat- urday, on uncertainty regarding the controversy in Washington over disposal of government stocks of grain.
Opening ¼-½ lower, July $1.21-1.20½, wheat later sagged further. Corn started unchanged to ¼ off, July 88½-89.

NAZIS' CIVILIAN MORALE SLIPPING

Letdown Is Evident With Hitler Failing To Make Good

time shock general confidence in the ability of the Nazi military ma- chine to swing anything it started.
Not even Hitler's tremendous vic- tories against the Russians could change the conviction in the minds of a majority of Germans that he had tackled a job he couldn't fin- ish.

"We've lost the war," was the common judgement.
The obvious efforts to hide the heavy casualties of the eastern campaign began to make Germans question for the first time the veracity of the high command's war communiques.

Though Hitler announced aston- dishingly low casualty figures, the law of averages told the Germans that the figures couldn't be right. The eastern campaign struck close to home. Everyone could count up relatives or friends within their small circles who had fallen or been badly wounded, and then strike an average.

The heavy losses hurt morale at home. At the same time, mothers, fathers and sweethearts of soldiers were receiving vivid accounts of the hardships and horrors on the Rus- sian front.
Worry and fear aggravated the wartime sacrifices, discomforts, complaints and repressions and shot through the once buoyant spirit of confidence in an early victory with apprehension for the future.

Alienates Church People
Nazi persecution of the Catholic and Protestant faiths and embittered the faithful. By depriving them of the privilege of free practice of their faith, the Nazi alienated mil- lions and drove a wedge deep into the inner front.

More than two years of conflict have been one long story of sacri- fice and more sacrifice by people at the crack of the Nazi party's whip. In that time, reserves which every household stored have dwindled away. Clothes are threadbare, with no chance of replacement. Store shelves are empty. Rations are be- coming slimmer and slimmer. Re- collections of the hungry days after the first world war have been awakened.

Germans with "connections" are perhaps the only exceptions today. "I have a friend in the party" has become the formula for squeezing extra rations out of the storekeeper and exacting special privileges.

Illegal traffic in clothing and food rationing cards by petty Nazi officials at prices as high as 100 marks per card is widespread and countenanced. There is always a va- cant apartment for an SS man or a loyal Nazi although the ordinary German can't find one at any price.
Bureaucracy and overlapping duties have grown out of hand to provide party favorites with soft wartime jobs at a safe distance from the front.

And so it goes—at the expense of the public morale, for such prac- tices become known rapidly.
As the economic pinch grew greater, Nazi propaganda state- ments tried to lull the nation into the notion the war was coming to a rapid end and that all troubles soon would be over.

Peace is the straw which the Nazis are holding out for the nation to clutch. In the meantime, Ger- man propaganda machine is feed- ing the Germans a one-sided "vic- tory" diet—so one-sided, in fact, that most Germans once really be- lieved the eastern campaign was won last October and the Russian army "destroyed."

30 miles northwest of Kharkov, to Krasnograd, 60 miles southeast of Kharkov. These sources said that although stiffened German resis- tance undoubtedly had slowed the Russian push in some places, it had been stopped nowhere.)

A special communique, triumph- antly announcing these Soviet suc- cesses during the period May 16, declared the drive was continuing unabated and the army Red Star asserted German resis- tance had been "definitely broken" in one sector.

The special announcement did not mention the situation on the Crimean front to the south, but the regular communique issued last midnight by the Soviet infor- mation bureau declared fighting al- ways raging near the city of Kerch which the Germans said Saturday they had captured.
